SINGAPORE CHRONICLES

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of Singapore’s Independence, the Institute of Policy Studies and Straits Times Press are jointly launching the Singapore Chronicles series in 2015. This 50-volume series seeks to record, explain and offer insights into what makes Singapore, Singapore. Covering a wide range of subjects, from the philosophical to the mundane, the fundamental to the practical, these Singapore Chronicles titles include Constitution, Presidency, Housing, Transport, Demography, CPF, Sports and Food. Each volume in this series will serve as a primer on the subject. Written by leading experts, they will focus on key aspects of the subject, providing analysis as well as an historical account. Readers will gain an insight into what makes Singapore tick and also why it has chosen certain “paths un-trodden”.

CONSTITUTION

Unlike many former British colonies, Singapore has prospered without abandoning the established constitutional order. Against that framework, this book traces the development of Singapore’s Constitution. It analyses Singapore’s unique representative model, and the roles of the Executive, and the Judiciary. Citizenship, equality, fairness and the minorities are issues that are treated within this constitutional framework, as is the protection of human rights. The book holds that the Singapore Constitution is a pragmatic document that facilitates governmental action for social and economic progress while assuring the public of a large measure of stability.

Contents

Foreword

1 Development of Singapore’s Modern Constitution
2 Perfecting Parliament: Singapore’s Unique Representative Model
3 Executive Dominance and Control: President and Cabinet
4 The Judiciary
5 Citizenship, Equality, Fairness and Minorities
6 Protection of Human Rights: Tensions and Trumps
7 Conclusion
Further Reading
Index

The Author

Kevin YL Tan taught full-time at the Law Faculty of NUS from 1986 to 2000, after which he founded Equilibrium Consulting Pte Ltd, a boutique consultancy focused on law, history and publishing. He is active in many civic organizations including the Singapore Heritage Society and the Foundation for the Development of International Law in Asia (DILA). Kevin has edited and written over 30 books on the law, history and politics of Singapore. He is currently Adjunct Professor at the Faculty of Law, National University of Singapore as well as at the S Rajaratnam School of International Studies, Nanyang Technological University.