SINGAPORE CHRONICLES

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of Singapore’s Independence, the Institute of Policy Studies and Straits Times Press are jointly launching the Singapore Chronicles series in 2015. This 50-volume series seeks to record, explain and offer insights into what makes Singapore, Singapore. Covering a wide range of subjects, from the philosophical to the mundane, the fundamental to the practical, these Singapore Chronicles titles include Constitution, Presidency, Housing, Transport, Demography, CPF, Sports and Food. Each volume in this series will serve as a primer on the subject. Written by leading experts, they will focus on key aspects of the subject, providing analysis as well as an historical account. Readers will gain an insight into what makes Singapore tick and also why it has chosen certain “paths un-trodden”.

INDIANS

Though a small minority within the Singapore society, the Indian community displays deep diversity within its own fabric. This book seeks to unpack complex questions of identity in Singapore’s Indian community. Discussing the story of Singapore Indians within the larger narrative of Indian displacement and placement globally, it goes on to contextualise the Indian presence in Malaya and Singapore historically. The author maps the socio-economic, religious and linguistic complexities of the community, which is further complicated by ongoing new arrivals from India. The dynamics of the Indian community is as rich as it is complex.

Contents

Foreword
1 Sojourners and Settlers
2 Situating Indians in Singapore
3 Socio-economic and Educational Profile
4 Cultural and Religious Complexities
5 New Community Configurations
Endnotes
Further Reading
Index

The Author

Professor Vineeta Sinha is currently Head, South Asian Studies Programme, National University of Singapore. She is also currently Head, Department of Sociology, NUS. She obtained her MSoc Sci from National University of Singapore and an MA and PhD in Anthropology from Johns Hopkins University. She has written comprehensively on Hindu religiosity in the diaspora, with particular emphasis on the practice of the religion in Singapore and Malaysia. Her work has focused on theorising forms of Hindu religiosity in the diaspora, the intersections of religion and commodification processes, the interface of religion and materiality and making sense of religion-state relations in colonial and post-colonial moments. Her publications include A New God in the Diaspora? Muneeswaran Worship in Contemporary Singapore (Singapore University Press & Nordic Institute of Asian Studies, 2005), Religion and Commodification: Merchandising Diasporic Hinduism (Routledge, 2011) and Religion State Encounters in Hindu Domains: From the Straits Settlements to Singapore (Springer, 2011). She is also Co-Editor of the Asian Journal of Social Science and the Monograph Series, Social Sciences in Asia, published by Brill and the International Library. She was elected Vice President (Publications) of the International Sociological Association from 2014 to 2018.